Unity in the Community Block Party

Submitted by Barry R. Devone III, Community School Coordinator, Rosa Parks Community School

On Saturday, May 14, Rosa Parks Community School (RPCS), in collaboration with the Valley Arts Organization and the City of Orange, sponsored the first Unity in the Community Block Party. The event was held on Main St. between South Essex and Cleveland Streets. Over 30 community-based organizations participated in the event, including Montclair State University (Center for Community Engagement), Oakwood Avenue Community School Health Clinic, Luna Stage, World Wide Orphans Foundation, several Orange Early Childhood schools, Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc. and the Orange Fire Department (OFD). The AmeriCorps Members, serving in the district, provided assistance with set-up, cleanup and facilitation of various activities during the day.

RPCS principal, Ms. Debra Joseph-Charles, opened the event with a warm welcome and information about the donation drive the school is sponsoring for the people affected by the recent earthquake in Ecuador. Superintendent Ronald C. Lee and Orange Mayor Dwayne D. Warren, Esq. encouraged the attendees to participate in the many activities that were available during the day and thanked the organizations contributing to the Block Party.

Children who attended the event were able to play in a Bounce House, paint a mural, and engage in Arts & Craft activities including Face Painting and Henna. Artwork from the students enrolled in the RPCS 21st Century After-School Program was displayed throughout the Block Party. The Oakwood Avenue Community School Health Clinic provided a bike in which students were able to get some exercise and make smoothies at the same time! There also was an OFD fire truck on display for families to explore and all of the participating organizations had information available about the services they provide to the community. To the delight of many at the event, DeeJay Levar Nelson provided the sounds that kept them dancing throughout the day.

The highlights of the day were the performances by the Mara Fanyi organization and the RPCS Dance Team and Choir. Mara Fanyi kicked off the show with an excellent exhibition on African Drums and Dance. A “Flash Mob” of RPCS students, dancing to the song Biker’s Shuffle, followed. Ms. Sonja Tynes, 4th-5th grade math teacher, dedicated time to teach the students the dance. Ms. Mariel Johnson, vocal music teacher, instructed the choir as they performed a beautiful rendition of Power in Me. Ms. Nadiyah McCoy, dance teacher, prepared the dance team for two performances including an Afro Jazz routine and a traditional African dance.

Humanitarian Drive Continues at RPCS

During the week of May 23-27, 2016, a bin located by the security desks is available to anyone interested in contributing to the initiative for the people affected by the earthquake in Ecuador. Donations will be accepted in the lobbies of both entrances to RPCS. The only donations being accepted are: Canned Goods, Batteries, and Hygiene Supplies.

Park Avenue Artwork Displayed at the Board of Education

The May monthly art exhibit at the Board of Education Building features the work of Park Avenue students, under the direction of art teacher, Mrs. Benay Lipstein. At the exhibit opening, Mrs. Lipstein created a serene atmosphere, with refreshments and music provided by her husband on the clarinet (pictured right). The work displayed is varied and demonstrates the NJ Core Curriculum Content Standards used in instructing the students. There is also an "art installation piece" in the corner of the lobby. Mrs. Lipstein explained that the art form represents a temporary state and changes as the individuals move in, out and around the piece.

Mrs. Lipstein also explained the lesson she included on spheres. Students studied famous athletes and drew basketballs and baseballs to illustrate the shape, adding their own creative touches. As the end to the unit, the Grade 5 - 7 artists got an opportunity to attend a Seton Hall basketball game, to the delight of the students. Technology is also highlighted in the exhibit. Students in Grade 4 created artwork to represent top "Apps" that are displayed on paper phones.

There are also drawings of roosters, maps illustrated on work gloves, elephants made out of paper bags and more. The work is a wonderful display of student talent. Artists received a certificate for their work. Present to congratulate them were Principal Dr. Myron Hackett, Supervisor of Visual and Performing Arts, Donna Sinisgalli, Superintendent Ronald Lee and a host of Park Avenue families and staff members.

NJ.Com Article Names Orange Prep Student as a Freshman Phenom

In an article posted May 16 on nj.com, titled Freshman phenoms: A look at the best first-year softball players in N.J., Orange Preparatory Academy student, Amanda Anderson (pictured below) was among the freshman softball players considered rising stars. Amanda plays 2nd, short, 3rd and the outfield positions for the Tornados. The team has 7 total wins for the season.

It's been a wild season in New Jersey softball, and that has included incredible performances from freshman players throughout the Garden State. From big bats in the heart of lineups to aces in the circle, neophytes have been shining all season long. Jeremy Schneider | NJ Advance Media for NJ.com

Teach Fleet Lego Ship Models For Education - STEM, History, and Diversity

Submitted by Ms. Marian Martin, Technology C/ oordinator, Cleveland Street School

On May 10, students from Cleveland Street School went on a field trip to Port Newark, NJ, to experience the Teach Fleet Lego Model Ships exhibit. Teach Fleet is a spectacular collection of 200 Lego ships, built by Commodore Wilbur McKinley. He is a former naval architect and founder of the Teach Fleet program. The collection consists of ships that serve different functions, including battleships, aircraft carriers, submarines, supertankers, and cargo ships.

The goal of Teach Fleet is to promote careers in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) and to encourage environmental awareness and stewardship. The collection also highlights Maritime history and diversity by recognizing prominent women and minorities who made significant contributions to STEM and Maritime. Each ship is named after a female or minority scientist, physician, engineer, mathematician, military officer or explorer. A placard featuring the portrait and biography of its namesake was next to each ship.

Upon arrival at the Seamen's Church Institute, the children were divided into small groups for a circuit of activities that included a slide presentation, the Lego ships exhibit, hands-on building stations and a tour of the seaport. During the tour, students saw scrap steel loaded directly into giant "break-bulk" ships, cement dumped into concrete trucks from huge silos, stones from Madagascar, rock salt piles, an orange juice tanker and a container ship dispersing cooking oils. Port Newark is the largest port on the East Coast and the third largest in the country. Maritime commerce is a trillion dollar industry, transporting 90% of the goods and essentials we use in our daily lives.

At the hands-on building stations, students built model ships and learned about their functions. They also learned about the men and women who work in the industry. The majority are seafarers and mariners. One of the presenters was a local harbor pilot. Captain John DeCruz, the first African American President of the NY Sandy Hook Pilots Assoc., said that it is the harbor pilots who steer the ships and tankers into port - and not the ship's captain. The average salary of harbor pilots nationwide is more than $400, 000.

Special thanks to Stephen Lyman, Director of the Seamen's Church Institute and his staff for their educational and financial contributions.
